

It has come to my attention that you may be in the process of increasing the vulgarity on television (including even more degrading, vulgar words and situations namely taking f-bombs/the 'f'-word off the list of can not say on the airwaves). Do not do this. Do not make America even more smut-filled than it already is. You may think that it is no big deal, but it is. We must keep above the dirt and slime. I have worked in pro sports for the past decade and the general lack of insightful communication is unbelievable, but we do not need to throw away this barrier (keeping television and radio free of the most aggravating, rude, foul word in our language) simply because we can. We are better than this. Do not become even more liberal and lenient to those who would destroy the possibility of having a decent society.
